WORK-RELATED LEARNING POLICY

Work-related learning is defined as: planned activity that uses the context of work to develop knowledge, skills and understanding useful in work, including learning through the experience of work, learning about work and working practices, and learning the skills for work.

The School will therefore make provision for all pupils across the key stages to:

- learn through work, by providing opportunities for pupils to learn from direct experiences of work (for example, through work experience and enterprise activities in school);
- learn about work, by providing opportunities for pupils to develop knowledge and understanding of work and enterprise (for example, through vocational courses and careers education);
- learn for work by developing skills for enterprise and employability (for example, through problem-solving activities, work simulations and mock interviews).

This three-strand approach highlights that it is not the skills and knowledge that are unique to work-related learning, but the context in which they are developed.
